7. Examiner's Amendment/Comment
8. Examiner's Statement of Reasons for Allowance
9. Other _____.

1. This Office action is in response to application filed 31 March 2004, which papers have been placed of record in the file.

2. Claims 1-23 are allowed over the prior art of record. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Claims 1 and 8 are allowable over the prior art of record since the cited references taken individually or in combination fails to particularly disclose a system for actuating a pole tip of a write head and a write head comprising a strain element electrically insulated from the head and a coil for carrying a current and producing a magnetic field at the strain element, as presented in the environment of claims 1 and 8. It is noted that the closest prior art, Thurn et al., shows a system for adjusting pole tip recession during manufacture of the slider similar to the claimed invention. However, Thurn et al. fails to disclose a coil for carrying a current and producing a magnetic field at the strain element as claimed.

Claim 15 is allowable over the prior art of record since the cited references taken individually or in combination fails to particularly disclose a method for dynamically actuating a pole tip of a write head comprising providing a strain element on the pole tip and a strain element coil carrying a current and producing a magnetic field at the strain element, as presented in the environment of claim 15. It is noted that the closest prior art, Thurn et al., shows a system for adjusting pole tip recession during manufacture of the slider similar to the claimed invention. However, Thurn et al. fails to disclose a coil for carrying a current and producing a magnetic field at the strain element as claimed.

Claim 23 is allowable over the prior art of record since the cited references taken individually or in combination fails to particularly disclose a method for actuating a pole tip of a write head comprising providing a strain element on the first insulator on the pole that produces a strain for actuating the pole tip in response to a magnetic field, and a strain element coil on the second insulator on the strain element carrying a current and producing a magnetic field at the strain element, as presented in the environment of claim 23. It is noted that the closest prior art, Thurn et al., shows a system for adjusting pole tip recession during manufacture of the slider similar to the claimed invention. However, Thurn et al. fails to disclose a coil for carrying a current and producing a magnetic field at the strain element as claimed.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Giel Figure 1 shows using a magnetostrictive element to position a non-flying head over the disk similar to applicant's invention.

4. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to James L Habermehl whose telephone number is (571)272-7556. The examiner can normally be reached on 8:30-5:00.
